

Radio-Controlled Rockets To Moon Possible By 1960

PARIS—How soon the moon? Arthur C. Clarke, chairman of the British Interplanetary Society, predicts that "during the next decade, the techniques necessary to send small, radio-controlled rockets to the moon will become available." Writing in the magazine "Impact of Science on Society," Clarke holds "there is no reason why such flights should not take place by 1960."

Clarke noted that "roughly at 100 ft we have to risk on chemical rockets, it may well require at least 20 years of further experimenting before the first low speed ship lands upon the moon and returns to earth," he says.

"That brings us to the late 1970s, when it will be possible to equip vehicles with fuel consumption measured by the thousand tons for a single voyage. Not more than one or two centuries will be able to build them and they will be of scientific value only."

Claims Damages Because Parakeet Lost Its Voice

CHICAGO—Muggsy, a talking parakeet who lost his voice in a noisy loop sound in "placemat" in a $2,500 dress suit.

Muggsy was well on his way to becoming a retail clerk, according to his owner, Miss Margaret Argue, who filed the suit on his behalf.

He had mastered the phrase "drop dead," but then Miss Argue, an area secretary, took him to the (previous) court.

Muggsy was born in his small terrarium at her first apartment. His owner, Miss Argue, said she had been told that the bird was a "drop dead" and that she had been told that the bird was a "drop dead" and that she had been told that the bird was a "drop dead."

Muggsy's full staff and half his patrons took up the cause. Fighting Muggsy's suit past had not fitted him for such rowdy duties, however, his faith in man was shattered.

Not even a "drop dead" could be ousted from him, the secretary complained.

Miss Argue, 25, said the suit is superior court against Miss Mendenhall, Plagel, and the salon.

Muggsy, of course, could not testify in his own behalf.

HERE'S HEALTH

The Bridge Club is now a person of importance. In the world of 8,000 foster parents in the world today, it is one of those Canadian who feel that these children, unlucky enough to be born with their families were being destroyed by war, must be given a chance to become self-sustaining citizens. Maria writes that she would like to be a dream-maker, and with friends in a happier country, she may realize her ambition. With a situation, on a farm, that all the world is against them, these children, now nearing adolescence, are apt to be swayed to lead their support in their lives. Their plight is still desperate. They are living in caves in the mountains of the Himalayas, in the mountains and in the mountains and in the mountains.

There was a young man from Down East. He said he had cared not the heart. Said his friend, "What a shame!" For the shape of his face.

Would indicate that he was dead. One of national health and welfare.

Runs Goat Farm In Heart Of Rich Dairy Country

SYDNEY, Australia—Gordon McDonald has started a new business in his big dairy country of New South Wales by running a farm to provide bottled goat's milk.

Plenty of people keep goats as a hobby or sideline, especially in Australia, but few dairy farmers have taken it seriously enough to keep one going, but Mr. McDonald says he is the only person here to do so.

He keeps nearly 100 goats, all pedigree white goats, which average 100 lbs. each. Thirty of them are now milking and producing 10 gallons a day. The milk retails at about twice the price of cow milk.

Mr. McDonald says that although the price is higher, she had left letters from hundreds of mothers who say that they have found the milk a remedy for indigestion, undernourishment, whooping cough and other children's ailments.

Her leading trader—Bleghin Snow White—only calls her goat's milk "the best in the world." She has produced 200 gallons of milk in 365 days. Mr. McDonald says that her goats are as gentle as the never has to tether them. In fact, she says "I have never seen any human being with the real meaning of understanding and co-operation."

Smile Of The Week

The elderly treasurer of a women's aid society went to a bank to deposit the money from a fund-raising event. The bank clerk, who was a young woman, looked at the money and said, "That's a nice sum, but it's not a very large one."

"That's all right," the treasurer replied. "I'll be back with more soon."

Still Many "Fossils" Living

NEW YORK—Now if you were exiled over the discovery of a "living fossil" fish in Africa, you would have a lot of living fossils to live with.

Another kind of living fossil is a creature that has been found in the fossil record, but which is still alive today.

American Records Show Two Chiefs Named "Sitting Bull"

NEW YORK—Now if everyone will just relax, we can settle this big dispute between the Dakotas and South Dakota over the bones of Sitting Bull. It's really the governor of North Dakota who's got to go to the governor of South Dakota. Let's go talk to the governor of Montana and hope the governor of Nebraska doesn't hear about it.

The point, you see, is that there were really two Sitting Bulls, not just one, and two ought to be buried around the same time. The governor of Montana and Nebraska ought to be buried around the same time.

MISS INGRID VAN BIESEN, a master of five languages and getting along with a few others has the interesting job of greeting new Canadians at Dorval Airport in Montreal. The pert young miss came to Canada after a stint of modelling for Jacques Fath in Paris and visiting almost every city in Europe and Africa. Miss Van Biesen, a native of Czechoslovakia, came to Canada when she heard from her Czech friends in Montreal how much they liked the place. As a T.C.A. ground hostess she meets people from foreign countries as they land and takes to them in their own tongue.

TO APPEAR IN CORONATION AS QUEEN'S GUARDS—In their Tudor uniforms of scarlet doublet, hose breeches and hose and low-crowned blue velvet hats, the Yeomen of the guard will be a "sight to see" as they walk in coronation procession on June 2nd. Founded by Henry VIII, the Yeomen of the Guard, comprised of all picked men, will act as Queen Elizabeth's bodyguards during the historical event.—Central Press Canadian.

DR. CECIL HARRIS, medical director of the Quebec Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, was proud and happy that Montevideo had set a new world record for blood donating. But he was heartened even more by the fact that 96 per cent of the 2,551 donors at the marathon clinic were people who had never given blood before. Self-spoken Dr. Harris gave his own blood for the 38th time and became donor No. 2,552 to climax the 40-hour clinic which had been operating eight hours a day for five days.

HOLLAND READIES FOR FLOOD RECOUPEMENT—The heartened by the recent floods that struck Europe, Holland is now working desperately to strengthen the dykes that guard the country against the sea. German warships, sent by German authorities to promote friendship between the two countries, are seen tugging at Friedland to strengthen the big dyke that runs from West Holland to East Holland by the border line.

WHERE 35 PERSONS PERISHED—Plane-blacked individuals give more evidence of the tragic fire at Littlefield Nursing Home in Largo, Fla., where 35 persons burned to death. Only one, a nurse, was under 60 years of age. Twenty-five old and infirm residents fled to safety.

FATHER FINDS LOST SON IN SWAMP—After wading through by swamp water for 15 hours with 100 other searchers, Willard Lambkin holds his son, Louis, age three, (see-estimated and terrified) but otherwise unharmed. The boy had wandered into the marsh from his Owen Sound, Ont., farm and had narrowly missed falling into numerous water holes deep enough to drown a man. Father Willard, 44, followed the boy's footprints until he heard a whimper. "I waded through that water as I have never run before," said Mr. Lambkin.—Central Press Canadian.

ESCAPED DEATH WHEN PLANES TANGLED IN MID-AIR—During a training flight over Halifax, two naval planes brushed each other in mid-air, causing slight damage to each craft, but no injury to crews. Damaged when tailplane of one tangled with wing of the other, the two planes—An Avenger piloted by Lieut. J. Patrick Niska, (right), of Dartmouth, N.S., and a Harvard flown by Lieut. J. Looking little like his 75 years, the senior surgeon is in the late George VI says he keeps "fit" by traveling and fishing. A born Canadian, he registered his arrival in Canada before the first season.

CARNIVAL WORKER IS "VICTIM" OF DEADLY SNAKE BITE—A life-saving serum flown in Montreal from Hamilton, Ont., was rushed to St. John's hospital, where doctors hoped to be winning a fight to save the life of 25-year-old carnival worker, Armand Couillard, who was bitten by a deadly water-circumcised snake, seen above. Couillard's left arm was swollen to almost four times its normal size of the snake's venom, which is being counteracted by serum found in an angler's kit in Hamilton. The deadly moccasin, mounted by Couillard, curled on his arm, struck at him as he attempted to put water in the cage containing several other snakes which had been driven to one side of the cage. Working with some 27 snakes on exhibit at carnival since last August, Couillard, seen at top attended by Dr. L'Héroux, apparently forgot to put on gloves worn by snake handlers which feeding them.—Central Press Canadian.

Moreover, as H. J. Smylinton used to stress, when he acted for the prairie provinces, the cost of building railways in the west was only a fraction of the cost of construction in the east or in British Columbia and this, also, should be a factor in fixing rates over the prairies, the tracks were laid on the level prairie. Even the water courses ran, for the most part, east and west and are a minimum obstruction.

Some figures which illustrate this point were given to parliament in the present session. The cost of constructing the Sheridan to Lynn Lake branch is proceeding. A total of 54.2 miles have been built at a cost of $7,241,480. Total mileage will be 155 miles and total cost is estimated at $14,725,000. The average cost per mile constructed is $134,000, the average estimated cost of the whole branch line is $95,000 per mile.

At the same time a branch line is being built to Killarney in British Columbia. The distance is 46 miles and the estimated cost is $10,000,000. The average cost per mile is estimated at $217,000.

The reason for this difference of course is obvious. But it is equally obvious that these conditions of lower cost should be reflected in freight rates.

RAILWAY BUILDING COSTS

As rates regarding freight rates that used to be stressed thirty years ago, but which is rarely mentioned now concerns the cost of building rail lines.

For nearly fifty years, the prairie provinces have been contending for equalization of rates. When railways were first built here, the C.P.R. put in a scale of rates much higher than in central Canada, and despite numerous efforts we have never been able to get our basic rates down to a level with those in Ontario and Quebec.

The injustice of this inequality is obvious. Here we have ideal railway operating territory—flat terrain, built freight, long haul and a minimum of truck competition.
